FLEETWOOD PARK.

Trotting Yesterday-Sweepstakes $400, Two Miles and Repeat, and a Match of $200 Between Country Roadsters.

. Three or four hundred persons, among them forty or fifty ladies, assembled at Fleetwood Park yesterday afternoon to witness two trotting contests between horses belonging in the section of Fordham. Much interest was taken in the two mile and repeat sweepstakes, and really a more clever struggle of tis character has not taken place in this vicinity for some time. The country roadsters, although not of the nature styled "clippers," caused much enthusi-asm among numbers of their respective partisans, so that at times their hilarity was a good deal more like an indian war cry than anything else it can be compared to.

TWO MILES AND REPEAT. First Heat .- Belle of Oneida was the favorite gainst the field. She was on the inside, Hickey second, Billy Bird third and Stella outside. They were sent off with Hickey leading and Billy Bird a bad fourth. On the turn Belle of Oneida and Stella left their feet, but the former was brought down to her work nicely, and, making a spart, went to the front, and was leading two lengths at the quarter in thirty-nine seconds. Hickey was second, the same distance in advance of Stella, with Billy Bird a distance in the rear. At the half-mile pole Stella, after a game contest with Hickey, took second place. and for a little while pushed the leader, but it was ineffectual, and they passed that point Belle of Oneida one length to the front, Stella second, three tengths ahead of Hickey, and Billy Bird now practically beaten for the heat. At the end of the firs mile, in 2:43, Belle of Oneida led one length, Stella second, six lengths in front of Hickey.

mile, in 2:43, Belle of Oneida led one length, Stelia second, six lengths in front of Hickey. From this point Stelia followed the forcing business way to the three-quarter pole, and, though she made a galiant attempt, never could assume command, and the pace got so hot for her on the homestietch she left therefeet and tell to third position, Belle of Oneida going under the wire a winner by two lengths, Hickey was third, a neck in advance of Stelia, and Billy Bird a distance out, but, owing to his miserable send-off, the judges allowed him to start for the second heat. Time of the two miles, 5:29.

Second Heat.—Hickey now became the favorite many of the buyers thinking he would last longer than the Belle, and a large business was done at the following rates:—Hickey, sloy: Belle of Oneida, 285; the field, $17. At the fourth attempt they received the word, Belle of Oneida being first, Hickey second, the others in good positions. At the quarter pole Belle of Oneida was leading two lengths, Hickey second on a "fly," Stelia third and Billy Bird last. Time to this point, thirty-nine seconds. Hown the backstreton the contest began to be more interesting, and at the half-mile pole, in 1:12, the Belle led but a neck, Stelia second, nail a length in front of Billy Bird, who was one length anead of Hickey, the atter looking very thea. Billy Bird new dosed with the leader, and it was nip and tuck down the homestretch; but the Belle had too much foot, and they passed under the wire the first mile Belle of Oneida three lengths in advance, Billy Bird second, one longth anead of Hickey, who was half a length in front of Stelia. Time, 2:39. From this point it was quite apparent but the first mile Belle of Oneida three lengths in advance, Billy Bird second, one longth anead of Hickey, who was not alread of Billy Bird struggled gallantly for the post of honor, but be became unsteady and his "Mys" were frequent became unsteady and his "Mys" were frequented by the first winner of the heat and race, Stelia second, three lengths in ev

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-I have read attentively the article signed "Concessionist" and your strictures upon it. I am by birth and education a Southerner, and the South can have no vital interests from which my sympathies can be weaned. With a very large majority of her most prominent citizens 1 am personally well acquainted, and among her leading jurists and statesmen that acquaintance has been sufficiently The address "Concessionist" suspects manated from the pen of an eminent southern statesman I denounce as a "put up job" by a radical fraudmonger, and a badly botched one at that. There is in this city at this time not less than five thousand Southern merchants making their autumn purchases. Yesterday evening I conversed with over one hundred of the most intelligent representatives of this proverbially intelligent and honorable class of Southern gentlemen, and of the organization to which "Concessionist" alindes not one of them ever heard. That said address did not emanate from a leading Southern mind its want of dignity, perspicuity and power leaves candor nothing to doubt. That such feeble twaddle ever proceeded from the piquant pen of that illustrious master of pure English, Alexander Hamilton Stephens, is not rendered more grossly improbable by its petulant purcliity than it is by the awkward ignorance it displays of what are the well known sentiments of affection by which Mr. Stephens' respect for the Northern people has always been inspired, and the equally well reputed sentiments of reverence he ever has cherished for the genus of our government. Independent of all this there are in that address direct personal aliusions which those to whom Mr. Stephens and his personal relations are intimately known, are bound to know, and with a confidence that must dismiss discussion, emphatically assert Mr. Stephens under no circumstances ever would or could have consented to make. Those pert tyros who, percaing themserves upon saits of presumption, make assaults upon Mr. Stephens editorially, and then, with a meanness that is niggardly, refuse to republish his courtly and conclusive answer, and with a cowardice that is pitiable sknik like whipped spaniels into a sullen silence, not daring to deny one of his facts, or even reply to, much less attempt to answer, one of his arguments. I have, as he has nothing to say; but when the slanderer comes forward to strike at the tone of his temper, and malevolently misrepresents his feelings as well as to mallgonantly caricature his taste and sense of propriety, I trust, sir, you will appreciate the personal devotion of a life-long friend, who feels it There is in this city at this time not less than five thousand Southern merchants making their autumn

CHINESE FEEDING THE DEAD.—John Chinaman has some very peculiar ideas regarding the state of his deceased countrymen. Sunday the Western House bus and an express wagon took a load of the benighted heathen out to the cemetery to perform the (to them) sad and solemn rites of feeding the dead. Arrived at the graves of their countrymen, the provisions and other things belonging to the ceremonies were placed beside the attar, a rude, holiow brick structure, raised about two feet and covered over, all except a smail hole in the top. This altar has draught holes in the ends and sides, and is used to burn up the ceremonial papers when the rites have been accomplished. The provisions consisted of a middling sized porker, roasted whole: fruit, Chinese liquor and some kind of eatables. The pig was placed beside the attar on a large wooden tray, and some clean straw spread at the boot of the tray. Some liquor, probably Chinese brandy, was sprinkied on the straw. A Chinaman then came torward, and after raising and falling his chasped bands three times knet down on the straw and bowed his head three times close to the pig's hink leet. Then he took a little cup filled with the liquor and sphiled a portion of it on the straw. Then another and another went through the ceremony until all had participated the grave, the papers burned on the altar, the provisions put in the wagons and the party returned. Formerly the Chinese left the provisions at the grave, the papers burned on the altar, the provisions put in the wagons and the party returned. Formerly the Chinese left the provisions at the grave, but the lindhas, who beheved that a live lindian had more need of food than a dead Chinaman, used to watch for the day of the ceremony and devour the spoils. It is supposed that several Chinamen in consequence of this loss of food were unable to reach the cetestial heaven. Now the Chinese leave the food long enough for the spirits to get a square mead and then bring it away with them.—

SUICIDE IN THE AUBUEN STATE PRISON.—On Satorday morning, about one o'cleck, Charles Heelon, a convict in Auburn, N. Y., prison, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. He was discovered soon after by one of the night guard, and an effort was made to get him to the nospital, but he died before he was got out of the cell. He was sent from Wyoming county in October, 1904, for the crime of murder in the second degree. He was about twenty-nine years of age. An enfort had been made by his friends to scure a partion, but it had failed, and it is supposed this is the cause of his committing the deed. He head was nearly severed from his body.

THE EXPORS OF THE WEEK. The aggregate expos, exclusive of specie, from the port of New York i foreign ports for the week ending August 29, 1871 amounted to $3,955.742. THE EW LOAN.

The Treasury Department announce that the

$200,000,000 of five pe cents has been subscribed for and the books clost. Much interest is manifested as to what will e the Treasury programme for September, and aso whether Secretary Boutwell will issue a notice of his intention to redeem the old five-twenties, of achieve the same object by an entarged purchase if bonds during the ensuing The '62's were selling to-day at 112%, with gold at 112%. Perhapsals policy contemplates both the special redemption of bonds and the enlarge-ment of his purchases at the Sub-Treasury—his necessities in the formerespect being measured inversely by his abilities in the latter to buy below par in gold. It seems he most sensible course at least to continue his teekly purchases of bonds until he can no longer buy at a discount in the open market, when ecourse can be had to special redemption. Ine fact should be remembered throughout all these considerations: the placing of the $30,000,000 five per cents does not reduce the principal of the debt one dollar. However atricate the process the eventual result will be the simple conversion of $200,000,000 of six per cents into five per cents. Any redemption of the dot, strictly speaking, must be accompashed by the jurchase of bonds with the present resources of the Treasury. It is true that the European subscripting were mostly in cash. but Judge Richardson, he Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in London, is doubtless quietly buying five-twenties in the propurion of dollar for dellar, thereby pursuing quietly a policy which Mr. Boutwell pursues openly here in he Sub-Treasury weekly purchases. In fact, the European bankers, who constitute the majority of the Syndicate, would never have entered into any agreement to suddenly withdraw $50,000,000 of god from their money market. As the law stands Mr. Boutwell must give ninety days' notice to holders of the oldest five-twenties that interest will cease and the principal be refermed. He must also begin with the first numbers of the first issues of five-twenties (the 1862's). It must strike everybody at once that before he could redeem and cancel an amount of the old bonds equal to the subscriptions to the new loan he would produce a spasm in the European money market that would lead to the direct consequences. Doubtless many of the older five-twenties which would be called in for formal redemption could not be immediately reached on account of their being held by peasants and private investors in the interior of Great Britain and Germany. Redemption in rotation, therefore, presents so many difficulties, and the market price of the 62's in New York and London being still under par in gold the, conclusion seems inevitable that Mr. Boutwell can make no startling changes in his Treasury programme and that he will simply pursue his usual weekly purchases here while Judge

THE STOCK MARKET DULL AND LOWER. The sternest moralist would find little ground for complaint on the score of stock gambling just now, for the market has drifted into very virtuous dulness. A feeble movement is perceptible now and then, here and there, but it is ever remittent and rebrile and never powerful or protracted. The first disposition this morning was "bearish," and prices slowly settled, Lake Shore and Rock Island accompanying each other down to 110%. Later in the day Wabash shook off the incubus of the general heaviness and started off on a brilliant little run, which took it up to 65%. Reading also refused to be involved in the general drowsiness and paddled its own boat so successfully as to stem and overcome the downward tide, achieving the mark 115 late in the afternoon. The rest of the list was as nearly featureless as it was possible to be.

THE CONDITION OF THE STREETS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-Upon reading your remarks in a late issue of your journal in reference to the condition of the streets of this city, one fact seems to have escaped the general observation, and which induces me to forward this communication, in the hope that it may be the means of remedying the evil by drawing the attention of the officials whose duty it is to attend to such matters. I have reference to the custom of encumbering the surgets with carts, trucks, &c. A walk through the most populous parts of the city will convince any one that this practice has become a perfect nuisance in more respects than one. In a sanitary point of view it is especially so, from the fact that the streets on which caris are placed are but half cleaned, even when men do appear for that purpose; and, further, those same streets are the dirtiest, owing to the fact that the carts afford a good place for the receptable of garbage and ashes from the surrounding houses. As an impediment to travel these same caris are a nuisance. Take for example Fourth street, near sixth avenue, which is a very narrow street, with a railroad track in the centre. On either side carts are left standing for the distance of a couple of blocks, and it is impossible for any other vehicle to pass through in an opposite direction to the railcar. How is it possible for such a street to be cleaned properly? And what applies to the locality above mentioned applies with equal force to numerous other portions of the city. Why, sir, I have seen large trucks backed to the curb and fully occupying one-half of the streets and the same trucks bearing the names of wealthy and inducential frims in the city, who are supposed to be able to pay rent for stabiling their conveyances without encumbering the public highway. Another instance:—On Seventa avenue, which, I believe, cost a large amount to pave a short time since, carts, three deep, near Seventent at the street, and, if so, cannot it be enforced?
